The South African sugar giant Illovo has 6159 hectares of sugarcane in Malawi, where it is a monopoly with an annual production of 2.8 million metric tonnes of sugar. The company denies persistent claims that it has grabbed land from smallholder farmers "Everybody loves Illovo" is the common slogan emblazoned on millions of sugar packets sold daily by Illovo Sugar (Malawi) Limited, the country's sole producer. However, for subsistence farmers at Kachibundi, Muwale, Kazilira and Kalimukhola at Dwangwa about 250 kilometres from Malawi's Capital City, Lilongwe, the slogan is a bitter-sweet fallacy. "I was dispossessed of my two and half hectares - my only source of livelihood," said farmer Joseph Mwale. "Now, I am suffering because I have to work in other people's farms to make ends meet." At 38, Mwale looks lost and confused as he narrates details of the evictions. There is fear, hatred and resignation that Malawi's justice system, and the overall structure of land administration favours the rich at the expense of the poor. "I used to grow maize, cassava, rice and beans but my crops were uprooted; my house destroyed. On top of that I was beaten for resisting eviction," Mwale said, sadly, head in hands. Tammy Dickinson, United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, announced that a Nixa, Missouri man was sentenced in federal court today for receiving and distributing child pornography over the Internet. Charles Williams, 28, of Nixa, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Brian C. Wimes to 10 years and 10 months in federal prison without parole. Williams, who pleaded guilty on August 7, 2013, admitted that he used peer-to-peer file-sharing programs on two laptop computers to download and distribute dozens of videos and photos of child pornography over the Internet from April 9 to September 27, 2011.

A Nixa police officer used a peer-to-peer file-sharing program to connect to Williams' computer over the Internet. The officer located child pornography on the computer and obtained a search warrant for Williams' residence. Officers executed the search warrant on September 27, 2011 and seized two laptop computers, two cameras, two videogame consoles, 115 CDs/DVDs, and a VHS tape. Among the files discovered on one of the laptop computers was a video of a 4- to 5-year-old child being raped by an adult. Williams was arrested on September 27, 2011.

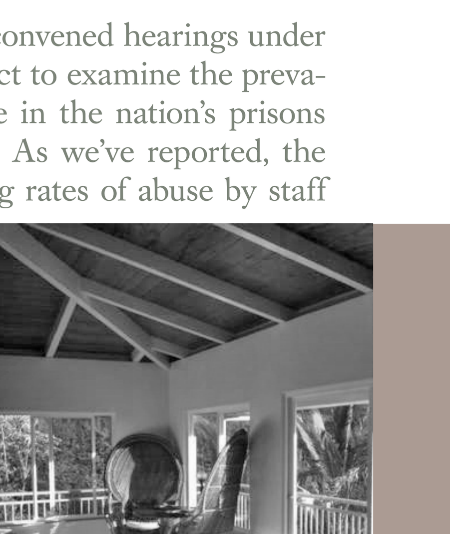

Investigators conducted an examination of Williams' computers and found 52 incomplete or partially downloaded videos of child pornography, 29 saved videos of child pornography, eight videos of child pornography in the recycle bin, and 13 images of child pornography.

This case was prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Randall D. Eggert. It was investigated by the FBI and the Nixa Police Department. Last week, the Justice Department convened hearings under the Prison Rape Elimination Act to examine the prevalence of rape and sexual abuse in the nation's prisons and juvenile detention centers. As we've reported, the department has found alarming rates of abuse by staff on youngsters in custody. In a 2013 survey of more than 8,700 juveniles housed in 326 facilities across the country, 8 percent said they experienced sex abuse at the hands of the staff supervising them. Twenty percent of those who said they were victimized by staff said it happened on more than 10 occasions. But perhaps the most surprising finding: Nine out of 10 victims were males abused by female staffers. The prison rape elimination legislation first passed in 2003, but it then took the Justice Department nearly 10 years to study the issue and release rules for prisons and juvenile detention centers to implement. Beginning late last year, auditors contracted by the federal government started inspecting these facilities to make sure that staff members are being trained on how to prevent sexual abuse and that there are effective means to monitor it. Sunni militants fighting under the banner of Al Qaeda appeared to make gains across Anbar Province on Saturday, using snipers and rocket-propelled grenades in heavy street fighting as they secured nearly full control of Falluja and captured the strategic town Karma. Government forces and the tribal militias fighting with them seemed unable to resist the militants advances. My humble words for my 71st birthday celebration on 3 Kings Day. I've been asked many times how I celebrate my birthday. Since I celebrate every day i wake up alive that for me is the best way i can answer the question regarding the celebration of my birthday. At my age i believe i've lived much longer than i had expected to live. And that's an excellent reason why i should celebrate every day i wake up, look up at the sky to see if there are stars or the moon out and feel the palpitation of my heart to confirm that i'm alive for real. The reaction to my allergies can make me aware that i'm alive, but that's something i don't really like to use because it can affect my desire to celebrate life.

i believe we should celebrate every day just for having awoken. When i've this idea with people they have question it. My response is that we should pay attention to the relativity of the human destiny. Because it doesn't matter how miserable one feels and how bad one thinks conditions are, the fact remains one is alive. And when one feels miserable all one has to do is to look around and one will see another person in worse conditions doing what might look impossible and facing the challenge without complaining. If one feels miserable because he or she lost an eye the person he or she sees dealing with the challenge that seems impossible is totally blind. That's why we should always take into consideration the relativity of the human destiny. When we start a new year or the calendar is telling us a new year has arrived we look at it as a chance to complete what we have not been able to accomplish in the past. When we face a crisis we should look at it as an opportunity to deal with it and to find a solution. It doesn't matter where we are. For example, when the earthquake devastated Mexico City and there was a major crisis we came up with the idea to raise funds from the public on population in order to give a hand to the victims of the earthquake. We talked to the staff and the idea was accepted. We were allowed to set up tables and get the prisoners to sign a form to have the money discounted from their funds. Within two hours we had raised over five thousand dollars. At first we had no idea how to help the victims. But after discussing the issue we were able to come up with a solution. We were able to do what for others seemed impossible. Celebrate life and not the commodification of it.

We can share and enjoy the act of and make it meaningful. We can celebrate any such moment and give meaning to our daily life and make it a real important cultural event. Life is an act of giving and receiving. But when the sharing of gifts is commodified it becomes another act of consumerism and our culture is the one that suffers its consequences. Any moment we celebrate our culture we are helping to pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 Kings Day and enjoy it to the utmost. If we believe a better and more just world is possible, we don't have to go to a far away place in the globe to make our contribution to such a lofty cause. We can do it right where we live. But we have to be willing to roll up our sleeves and do the hard work. Words are important, but it's the work that bears fruits. And if we learn one lesson in life that's worthwhile holding on to passing it on is that the only thing that's impossible is that which doesn't get done. It was Madeba who said that any problem us humans create have a solution. If there is a poverty problem it can be solved if we tackle it. Let's emulate Madeba's example. Let's dare to struggle. Let's dare to win. Talk the talk and walk the walk. i leave you with a big hug with much love. Take care, abrazos, Oscar Lopez Rivera Anarchism is part of a broader range of libertarian socialist thought and action that includes the practical achievements of revolutionary Spain in 1936; reaches further to worker-owned enterprises spreading today in the American rust belt, in northern Mexico, in Egypt, and many other countries, most extensively in the Basque country in Spain; and encompasses the many cooperative movements around the world and a good part of feminist and civil and human rights initiatives. This broad tendency in human development seeks to identify structures of hierarchy, authority and domination that constrain human development, and then subject them to a very reasonable challenge: Justify yourself. A former Columbia, Illinois resident pled guilty on January 18, 2014, to a two-count indictment charging him, in count one, with receipt of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(2); and, in count two, with possession of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(4)(B), the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Neil E. Purdy, 29, formerly of Columbia, Illinois, faces a term of imprisonment of not less than five but not more than 20 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count two; and, a term of imprisonment of not more than 10 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count two. In addition, upon his release from prison, Purdy must register as a sex offender. Sentencing is scheduled for May 16, 2014, in East St. Louis, Illinois. Purdy has been held without bond since his initial appearance on April 26, 2013.

The investigation began on February 7, 2012, when an individual contacted the Columbia Police Department to report that the defendant molested his/her 14-year-old child. He/she also told the Columbia police that he/she saw the defendant "Google" the phrase, "where can i find really young porn." He/she said that, when he/she asked the defendant, "How long have you had this little problem?" Purdy responded, "About three years." On February 16, 2012, Purdy, a member of the U.S. Navy Reserve with top secret clearance, admitted to Columbia Police officers that he molested the 14-year-old. When questioned about searching for or possessing child pornography, Purdy admitted that he possessed videos and images of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct on his laptop computer. Purdy subsequently led the officers to his apartment and allowed them to seize the laptop computer. A forensic review of Purdy's laptop computer revealed 20 videos and seven images of minors engaged in sexually explicit behavior. A new report has revealed that the number of hunger strikers in Guantanamo has doubled since the final set of official figures was released by the US authorities on December 2 2013. The report, compiled by human rights charity Reprieve, uses prisoner testimony to reveal that 33 men detained in Guantanamo are on hunger strike, with 16 being force-fed. The Joint Task Force at Guantanamo, which runs the prison, announced in December 2013 that they would no longer release official figures of those on hunger strike because they did not want to 'further their protests'. The report also reveals that authorities at the prison are punishing those on hunger strike by sending them to the strictest of the camps, "Camp V Echo". One detainee described his experiences there to his lawyer at Reprieve: "My cell in the dreadful Camp V Echo is constructed in a strange manner. It is designed to torture the person who is held there. All the surfaces made of steel. The bed is steel. The floor is steel. The toilet is steel. There is no toilet, but the hole in the ground is made of steel." British resident Shaker Aamer, who remains imprisoned despite having been cleared by both the Bush and Obama administrations, said: "[I was] strapped to the bed for 24 hours except to use the toilet. The [force-feeding] tube was in 24 hours a day. We would be fed for 30-40 minutes each time, with Ensure cans, two cans, three times a day. Some of the prisoners have vomitables, as if they were already dead. I dropped weight to 130 pounds. I told the doctors, 'I want to die peacefully. I want no intervention.' But they refused this." Mr Aamer's British wife and four British children, the youngest of whom he has never met, live in London. British Prime Minister David Cameron has raised his case directly with President Obama, yet Mr Aamer remains imprisoned. There is an ongoing police investigation into Mr Aamer's treatment at the hands of British and US officials. 155 men are still detained in Guantanamo Bay, 77 of who have been cleared for release. Yesterday (Saturday) marked the twelfth anniversary of the first arrival of prisoners at the detention camp. Of the 779 men known to have been held there 624 have been released. More prisoners have died than have been put on trial. In an endlessly mutating world of media forms, scholars, creative practitioners and professionals in a variety of fields need to understand the ways in which media transforms and dissolves boundaries across disciplines and creates new forms of knowledge and cultural production. The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Media Studies provides students with the conceptual and practical tools necessary to prepare themselves to engage some of the fundamental challenges and complexities of our times. The program interrogates the social, practical, economic, political and theoretical stakes of mediation considered in the widest possible sense, encompassing more traditional approaches to the study of media (print, film, photography, audio and television), in conjunction with approaches that address the massive shifts produced by the computer and internet including gaming and social media Students will benefit from an academic environment shaped not only by theorists and critics, but also by distinguished practitioners of the forms being studied. Students study and work among theorists, artists and designers and are taught by faculty-practitioners. Our courses are small, intensive, seminars taught exclusively by professors. The program is 30 credits and can be completed in threesemesters. Among the core requirements are (1) six credit hours of courses that provide students with critical and theoretical tools and (2) six credit hours of courses that enable students to acquire a range of basic competencies in media aesthetics and production. Additional courses introduce students to professionals from media fields. There are 12 credits of free electives, which give students the liberty to customize their study. Four credits are reserved for the thesis, which will take the form most relevant to the student's course of study. Finally, we will help students find internships that complement their work. An individual who robbed a bank yesterday morning in Phoenix and who later was shot and killed in an exchange of gunfire with a Phoenix police detective has been identified as the same individual responsible for the attempted bank robbery in Atlanta, the robbery of the BancorpSouth in Tupelo, the shooting of Tupelo Police Officer Joseph Edward Maher, and the murder of Tupelo Police Officer Kevin "Gale" Stauffer. This identification has been made based upon similarities between these bank robberies, including the clothing worn by the bank robber, statements made by the bank robber during the robberies, and the robber's overall modus operandi, supported by other evidence and information collected during the course of this investigation. Additionally, cell phone records obtained via court order indicated that this individual's phone was in Atlanta, Tupelo, and Phoenix when the bank robberies were committed.

Not many people come to Fort McMurray, the notorious Alberta boom town on the edge of one of the world's largest industrial developments, to commune with the great northern woods. Most are here for the overtime, for the paid vacations, for the blue-collar jobs that pay six figures, for the work. This means that all of the bad things you've heard about Fort McMoney are true: the traffic really is murderous, there are liquor stores (many open until 2 a.m.) in every strip mall, and the place has a depressingly large population of desperately lonely guys blowing ridiculously fat paycheques on steroids, tattoos, monster trucks, and peelers. ... Mobley: Oh well! Anyway... An Allegheny County resident has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Pittsburgh on charges of production and possession of material depicting the sexual exploitation of a minor, United States Attorney David J. Hickton announced today.

The four-count indictment, returned on January 8, named George Orbin, 58, of 804 Center Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, as the sole defendant. According to the indictment, on or about December 10, 2011, June 10, 2013, and June 11, 2013, Orbin employed, used, persuaded, induced, enticed, and coerced minors to engage in sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing a visual depiction of the sexual exploitation of the minors. The indictment further alleges that on or about September 10, 2013, Orbin knowingly possessed videos and images in computer graphic files, the production of which involved the use of minors engaging in sexually explicit conduct, some of whom had not yet attained 12 years of age.

The law provides for a maximum total sentence of 100 years in prison, a fine of $1,000,000, or both. Under the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, the actual sentence imposed would be based upon the seriousness of the offenses and the prior criminal history, if any, of the defendant.

Assistant United States Attorney Jessica Lieber Smolar is prosecuting this case on behalf of the government.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Allegheny County District Attorney's Office conducted the investigation leading to the indictment in this case. Oscar Lopez Rivera is a freedom fighter for the independence of Puerto Rico. He has the unenviable distinction of being the longest-held Puerto Rican political prisoner in the United States. He was charged with seditious conspiracy, that is, to conspire to end the United States government's control over Puerto Rico through force, via membership in the Armed Forces of National Liberation (FALN). Initially, he was sentenced to 55 years in prison in 1981; later, in 1987, 15 more years were added to his sentence due to an alleged conspiracy to escape, a charge that according to his defense attorney, Jan Susler, was fabricated by the government. Good day to you and your family, I hope my email will arrive to you at good time. My name is Mr. Rami Makhlouf writing from Damascus Syria. 43, of Phoenixville, Pennsylvania, is charged by information, filed today, with distribution of child pornography, announced United States Attorney David Memeger. The indictment charges Russell with one count of distributing child pornography between June 13 and June 17, 2012. If convicted the defendant faces a maximum possible sentence of 20 years' imprisonment.

The case was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (including members of the FBI's Child Exploitation Task Force) and the New Britain Township Police Department and is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Albert S. Violence in America is primarily vigilante violence, used most often to crush dissent, to keep a repressed minority in a state of fear, or to exact revenge on those the state has branded as traitors. It is a product of hatred, not hope. It is directed against the weak, not the strong. The slave patrols and the Ku Klux Klan that terrorized blacks; the Pinkertons and the gun thugs who shot dead hundreds of workers and wounded thousands more in the bloodiest labour wars in the industrialized world; the anti-communist Cuban exile groups that waged a reign of terror against fellow Cubans in Miami--all of these are expressions of a long history of mob-led violence that is tolerated, and often encouraged, by the ruling elite. Citizens feel free to settle their disputes with weapons, because violence, as the black activist H. Rap Brown once said, "is as American as cherry pie." We have always whipplocked, even idolized, our killers. The Indian fighters, gunslingers, and outlaws on the frontier, as well as the mobsters and the feuding clans such as the Hatfields and McCoys, colour our popular history. Figures like Davy Crockett, as Richard Slotkin writes, "became mythic heroes by defining national aspiration in terms of so many bears destroyed, so much land preempted, so many trees hacked down, so many Indians and Mexicans dead in the dust." As Kate discovers that time has a way of standing still at Lost Lake can she bring the cottages--and her heart--back to life? Because sometimes the things you love have a funny way of turning up again. And sometimes you never even know they were lost . . . until they are found. It was 20 years ago that the North American Free Trade Agreement between the US, Canada, and Mexico was implemented. In Washington, that date coincided with an outbreak of the bacteria cryptosporidium in the city's water supply, with residents hurrying to boil their water before drinking it. The joke in town was, "See what happens, NAFTA takes effect and you can't drink the water here." Our neglected infrastructure aside, it is easy to see that NAFTA was a bad deal for most Americans. The promised trade surpluses with Mexico turned out to be deficits, some hundreds of jobs, thousands of jobs were lost, and there was downward pressure on US wages -- which was, after all, the purpose of the agreement. This was not like the European Union's (pre-Eurozone) economic integration, which allocated hundreds of billions of dollars of development aid to the poorer countries of Europe so as to pull their living standards up toward the average. The idea was to push US wages downward, toward Mexico's, and to create new rights for corporations within the trade area: these lucky multinational enterprises could now sue governments directly before a corporate-friendly international tribunal, unaccountable to any national judicial system, for regulations (eg environmental) that infringed upon their profit-making potential.

But what about Mexico? Didn't Mexico at least benefit from the agreement? Well if we look at the past 20 years, it's not a pretty picture. The most basic measure of economic progress, especially for a developing country like Mexico, is the growth of income per GDP) per person. Out of 20 Latin American countries (South and Central America plus Mexico), Mexico ranks 18, with growth of less than 1% annually since 1994. ATTN:My Dear Friend Good day to you. I am us-

Best regards, Barrister Joe Cooper Effective use of the Internet will benefit everyone. Currently the benefits of the Internet are distributed unequally: some people gain power, wealth and influence from using the Internet while others struggle for basic access. In our vision, people in their communities and everywhere – including the poor and marginalized in developing and developed countries, women and youth, indigenous peoples, older persons, those with disabilities – will use the Internet to develop and exercise their civic intelligence and work together to address collective challenges.

More than a technology or a marketplace, the Internet is a social environment, a community space for people to interact with the expectation that principles of equity, fairness and justice will prevail. Internet governance must ensure that this online social space functions effectively for the well-being of all.

A community informatics approach to Internet governance supports equal distribution of Internet benefits and addresses longstanding social, economic, cultural and political injustices in this environment. Questions of social justice and equity through the Internet are central to how the Internet and society will evolve. People in different communities must be empowered to develop and adapt the Internet infrastructure to reflect their core values and ways of knowing.

Thanks for the great observations both privately and on this list. The meeting sound being begging for food makes perfect sense in the con-

The kek kek kek call is a bit murkier. I will keep observing and try to figure out the occasions for this call. Perhaps what I'm hearing as the same call each time may have different meanings depending on how many keks, how loud, etc. Just as a chickadees chick a dee dee dee has many meanings depending on how insistent, how loud, and how many dees follow the "chick a". ;-) Bird languages are fascinating and could tell us a lot about what's going on in their world. A Louisville Man who pleaded guilty to violating federal child exploitation laws was sentenced to 20 years in prison, followed by 12 years of supervised release this week, by Senior U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Simpson, III, announced David J. Hale, United States Attorney for the Western District of Kentucky.

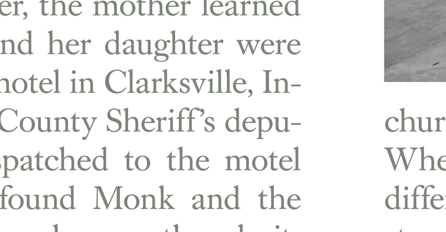

Marvin Duane Monk, age 46, Monk pleaded guilty to a two-count Indictment returned by a federal grand jury on October 2, 2012. Monk was previously charged in a September 6, 2012 criminal complaint.

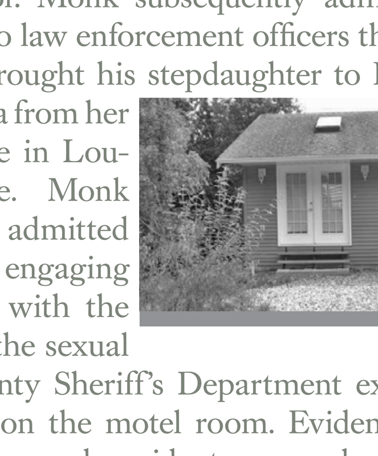

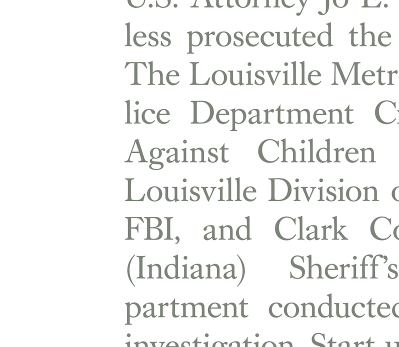

According to court records, on August 19, 2012, Monk's spouse discovered that he had been engaging in sexual activities with her minor daughter in their Louisville residence. Monk left the residence in Louisville and moved to a hotel in Clark County, Indiana. Shortly thereafter, he took the minor from Louisville to Indiana with him. Not knowing where her daughter was, the mother contacted the Louisville Metro Police Department and filed a missing person report. She also filed for and received an Emergency Protection Order (EPO) against Monk in Jefferson County, Kentucky. The EPO included an order that Monk have no contact with either his wife or the minor stepdaughter.

Two days later, the mother learned that Monk and her daughter were staying at a motel in Clarksville, Indiana. Clark County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the motel where they found Monk and the minor. Monk subsequently admitted to law enforcement officers that he brought his stepdaughter to Indiana from her home in Louisville. Monk also admitted to engaging in a sexual relationship with the minor and to recording the sexual activity. The Clark County Sheriff's Department executed a search warrant on the motel room. Evidence seized included a video recorder, videotapes, and cellular telephones. Assistant U.S. Attorney Jo E. Lawless prosecuted the case. The Louisville Metro Police Department Crimes Against Children Unit, Louisville Division of the FBI, and Clark County (Indiana) Sheriff's Department conducted the investigation. Artist-intensive neighborhoods like Bushwick and Ridgewood are still affordable, companionable and fun.

But when the rents get too high, or the economy fails, or art buying falls out of fashion, and the art industry decides to liquidate its overvalued assets and leave? Artists, the first and last stakeholders, will have themselves to fall back on. They'll learn to organize and agitate for what they need, to let City Hall know, in no uncertain terms, that they're there. They'll learn to share, not just on special occasions, but all the time. They'll learn that art and politics are inseparable, and both can be anything and everything. They'll learn to bring art back from the brink of inconsequence. This is Tom Crist from Canada. On a foggy spring morning in 1972, twelve-year-old Byron Hemming and his mother are driving to school in the English countryside. On the way, in a life-changing two seconds, an accident occurs. Or does it? Byron is sure it happened, but his mother, sitting right next to him in the car, has no reaction to it. Over the course of the days and weeks that follow, Byron embarks on a journey to discover what really happened- or didn't-that fateful morning when everything changed. It is a journey that will take him-a loveable and cloistered twelve-year-old boy with a loveable and cloistered twelve-year-old boy's perspective on life-into the murkier, more difficult realities of the adult world, where adults lie, fathers and mothers fight without words, and even unwilling boys must become men. By the end, Byron will finally reconcile the dueling realities of that summer, a testament to the perseverance of the human spirit and the power of compassion.

It's the start of 2014 and the dead of winter across the northern hemisphere. In the United States and Canada record breaking cold temperatures are being felt by millions. During the overnight hours lows are diving in to the mid minus 30s while the wind chill is making it feel like -40 to -50. This freezing cold weather is though is just another day in parts of North East China this of year. Specifically in Harbin where the forecast lows over the next three days is expected to drop to -25 to -35.

This cold has also led to the ability to create one of the biggest and most celebrated ice shows in the world. This year is the 30th annual Harbin Ice Festival; it really is one of the most extravagant festivals available in eastern Asia during the winter time. (Japan also host a ice festival in February in Sapporo.) The festival has numerous activities for those who dare to brave the cold. Ranging from ice slides to full ice churches to fireworks.

Another down side to the festivities though is the reputation of Harbin being a poorly cleaned atmosphere soup. What that means is the air quality is relatively bad and at this time Harbin currently holds a AQI of 222. A level considered very unhealthy. Back in October the city experienced levels much higher than that causing business and schools to shut down. The reason for this is poorly controlled air pollution measures combined with a dominate and capping Westpac high that holds any aerosols in the air very close to the ground and with little wind it is unable to transport. Thus decreasing the air quality. Good day, There is a sum of $29,300,000.00 in my bank where i work. It's a humanist sans with an edge, and preserving its human touch keeps it legible. While most contemporary typefaces assimilate uppercase and lowercase, Grotext emphasizes their differences. The capitals have wide, classical proportions, while narrow lowercase letters make this family a real space-saver. This subtle nod to blackletter lowercase combined with uncial uppercase forms make the characteristic sans stand out. KLTF Litteratra The name Litteratra - of littera atra, meaning "dark letter" - perfectly describes Karsten's original intention: to design a typeface that creates a dark text block on the page. To achieve this he combined elements of Fraktur (also known as blackletter) and Roman type. Just like the earliest italic types, Litteratra's italic lowercase comes with Roman capitals. This striking typeface features small caps, extensive language support, and an overwhelming collection of lowercase and capital ligatures, alternates, arrows, and other assorted symbols.

A Greenville man pled guilty in federal district court on January 16, 2014, to attempt to access with intent to view visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Terry L. Adcock, 65, Greenville, Illinois, faces a term in federal prison of not more than 10 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life when he is sentenced. Sentencing is scheduled for May 16, 2014, in East St. Louis, Illinois. Adcock also agreed to forfeit the computers that contain the visual depictions. In addition, upon his release from prison, Adcock must register as a sex offender as a condition of his supervised release. Adcock is being held without bond pending sentencing. An FBI nationwide investigation revealed IP addresses that accessed a web forum known to contain links to images and/or videos of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct. The web forum listed a detailed description of the image and/or video file that a user could link to. This investigation revealed that, between October and November 2011, an IP address assigned to Adcock tried to access the web forum on five separate occasions. On December 18, 2012, FBI special agents spoke with Adcock at his residence about the results of the investigation. Adcock admitted that he had been searching for and viewing images of child pornography on the Internet since he bought his first computer approximately 20 years prior and that he was interested in prepubescent girls between the ages of 10 and 12. He said that, by Googling a search term commonly associated with child pornography, he would gain access to thousands of websites that contained child pornography. Adcock gave consent to the officers to search and seize, among other things, a Gateway desktop computer and a Dell Inspiron laptop computer that he used to access and view child pornography. Over 1,400 financial institutions have been targeted and compromised millions of computers around the globe and the most targeted banks are in the US with 71.5% of all analyzed Trojans. Financial institutions have been fighting against malware for the last ten years to protect their customers and online transactions from threat. Over the time the attackers adapted to these countermeasures and sophisticated banking Trojans began to emerge. The number of infections of the most common financial Trojans grew to 337 percent in the first nine months of 2013. Nearly 1,500 institutions in 88 countries were potential targets during 2013. The installation explores a mythic and multisensory dimension of space at the confluence of the natural world and the built environment. This exhibition brings together two connected bodies of work in the form of large photographs depicting the posture of taxidermy birds paired with sculptural elements. In both series, oversized images emphasize the paused gaze of the animals, vigilantly attentive and watchful of their prey. The ensemble generates a singular climate of tension as the images become more than what they represent. By straddling realism, artifice and the fantastic, they conjure up a surreal and uncanny atmosphere heightened by the reciprocity of territorial calls. The blurred reflections framed by metallic disks as well as the sound seemingly emanating from large megaphones forge sensory connections with a parallel world, enhancing the poetic charge and evocative power of the ensemble. In this work lies a genuine interest in the phenomenon of mental projection; to conjure up a mythic presence in a distant landscape as a psychic mechanism that constructs its subject in time and space. The work is not distinctively about nature but rather an idea of nature conveyed in a deliberate setting as a reflection on the perception of natural subjects in a forged context. "Werner Herzog is a miserable, hateful, malevolent, avaricious, money-hungry, nasty, sadistic, treacherous, cowardly creep. He should be thrown alive to the crocodiles! An anaconda should strangle him slowly! A poisonous spider should sting him and paralyze his lungs! The most venomous serpent should bite him and make his brain explode! No panther claws should rip open his throat--that would be much too good for him! Huge red ants should piss into his lying eyes and gobble up his balls and his guts! He should catch the plague! Syphilis! Yellow fever! Leprosy! It's no use; the more I wish him the most gruesome deaths, the more he haunts me." - Klaus Kinski

Still Life with Bread Crumbs begins with an imagined gunshot and ends with a new tin roof. Between the two is a wry and knowing portrait of Rebecca Winter, a photographer whose work made her an unlikely heroine for many women. Her career is now descendent, her bank balance shaky, and she has fled the city for the middle of nowhere. There she discovers, in a tree stand with a roofer named Jim Bates, that what she sees through a camera lens is not all there is to life. In this exhibit, around 220 works from the private collection of the painter Georg Baselitz and from the Albertina impressively demonstrate the origins and artistic development of the chiaroscuro woodcut in the 16th century. Especially beautiful and rare, in some cases unique prints will be shown. First examples of the printing process in which the black line plate is supplemented by one or more colour plates originate from Lucas Cranach and Hans Burgkmair, who worked together with the carver Jost de Negker. The artists from the circle around Drer, including Hans Baldung Grien, Hans Sebald Beham and Hans Wechtlin, as well as masters such as Albrecht Altdorfer, quickly took up the new process, with which unique colour effects could be achieved in printed graphics. Only a few years after its invention in Germany, the first masterpieces of the chiaroscuro woodcut were created in Italy by Ugo da Carpi. Counterterrorism analysts assess the leadership, motivations, capabilities, plans, and intentions of foreign terrorist groups and their state and non-state sponsors. Their key mission is to identify specific threats, warn of and preempt attacks, disrupt their networks, and eventually defeat terrorist organizations. Counterterrorism analysts analyze a variety of information to gain a comprehensive understanding of a complex analytic issue and produce a range of written intelligence products. Counterterrorism analysts also brief US policymakers and foreign partners, military officials, and intelligence and law enforcement agencies. They provide analytic support to law enforcement and other US government organizations, and highlight targeting opportunities to support intelligence operations designed to counter terrorism. Agency analysts are encouraged to maintain and broaden their professional ties through academic study, contacts, and attendance at professional meetings. They may also choose to pursue additional studies in fields relevant to their areas of responsibility. Opportunities exist for foreign travel, language training, analytic and management training, and assignments in other offices in the Agency and throughout the US Government.

Minimum requirements include a bachelor's or master's degree in international affairs, national security studies or related subjects, preferably accompanied by specific regional expertise. A minimum GPA of 3.0 on a 4-point scale is required. Competitive candidates typically will have higher GPAs, relevant experience, and strong verbal presentation and writing skills, including the demonstrated ability to write clear and concise text. Excellent analytical ability, solid interpersonal skills, the capacity to think clearly and creatively, and the ability to work under tight deadlines are also required. Foreign language proficiency and foreign area knowledge gained through study, travel or work abroad is desired.

All applicants must successfully complete a thorough medical and psychological exam, a polygraph interview and an extensive background investigation. US citizenship is required. To be considered suitable for Agency employment, applicants must generally not have used illegal drugs within the last twelve months. The issue of illegal drug use prior to twelve months ago is carefully evaluated during the medical and security processing.

The man who promised to restore hope and bring change to America, has announced a plan to open five corporate plantations in the United States. On Thursday, President Barack Obama, whose policies have resulted in the greatest number of public sector job losses in US History (Public sector jobs have declined by 718,000 jobs since Obama took office.) announced the opening of five "Promise Zones" located in San Antonio, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, southeastern Kentucky, and the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma.

"Under the proposed Promise Zones, the federal government plans to partner with local governments and businesses to provide tax incentives and grants to help combat poverty." Combating poverty has nothing to do with it. Obama plans to shower the nation's biggest corporations-which recorded record profits in the last year and are presently sitting on more than $1.3 trillion in cash-with more lavish subsidies and tax breaks while providing an endless source of cheap slave labor to boost future earnings. The president believes that the wealth generated in these profit zones, er, promise zones will trickle down to the area's residents, even though it can be hard to tell whether a program's benefits reach the poorest people, rather than flowing largely into the hands of the business owners who get the tax credits. Over the last few years, South Sudan has served as a testing ground for international engagement in so-called 'fragile states', an engagement which has too often followed textbook prescriptions and overlooked the political and social realities of the country, treating it instead as a technical exercise in state building. Many in the aid sector in South Sudan have been operating on the assumption that greater development -- improved services, infrastructure, access to food -- would lead to stability and lasting peace. These assumptions were fundamentally challenged in Aiding the peace: a multi-donor evaluation of support to conflict prevention and peacebuilding activities in Southern Sudan 2005-2010 which found no evidence of the assumed causal link between the provision of basic services ("peace dividends") and a reduction in conflict. This finding was controversial as it challenged the premise, upon which a great deal of assistance to southern Sudan has been based, "that the provision of socioeconomic services addresses needs, leading ultimately to the enhancement of state legitimacy and stabilisation."

It serves up swash forms, contextual alternates, and ornaments to sweeten this tasty typeface. Named after the typographic symbol used to mark the start of a paragraph, Pilcrow is a simple, utilitarian sans serif. It's available in two versions - straight-cornered and rounded - and its square-like letter forms are similar to those found on street and highway signs around the world - or on cast-metal lettering for industrial products. Brooklyn Samuels was recently extended to a five-weight family. Rounded inner and outer corners give the geometrical character shapes a friendly feel. Although it is primarily intended for headline use, stylistic sets offer text-friendly alternatives for some letters, yielding excellent legibility in small sizes. Like Bitcoin, There are numerous other cryptocurrency similar in nature, including MasterCoin, ProtoShares, Litecoin, Peercoin, BitBar and many more. One of them is Primecoin (sign: Ψ; code: XPM), a peer-to-peer open source cryptocurrency that implements a scientific computing proof-of-work system. Unlike Bitcoin or other virtual currencies, only Primecoin provides a proof of work that has intrinsic value. It generates a special form of prime number chains, known as `Cunningham chains & bitwin chains' and has a real world importance in mathematical research. Worldwide famous RSA Encryption basically uses two prime numbers for generating a RSA key pair. If you are able to factorize the public key and find these prime numbers, you will then be able to find the private key. Thus, the whole Security of RSA encryption is based on the length of prime numbers. So, Primecoin plays a great role for crypto researchers to get large... and a very large number of Primes. Like other cryptocurrency miners, Primecoin miners are also available and in simple terms, just put your computer to work to find prime numbers chain and make money.After Bitcoin, the increasing public attention of other cryptocurrency did not go unnoticed by the Cyber criminals who have begun unleashing Primecoin mining malware. Governments are power systems. They are trying to sustain their power and domination over their populations and they will use what means are available to do this. By now the means are very sophisticated and extensive and we can expect them to increase. So for instance, if you read technology journals you learn that in robotics labs for some years there have been efforts to develop small drones, what they call "fly-sized drones," which can intrude into a person's home and be almost invisible and carry out constant surveillance. You can be sure that the military is very much interested in this, and the intelligence systems as well, and will soon be using it. We're developing technologies that will be used by our own governments and by commercial corporations and are already being used to maximize information for themselves for control and domination. That's the way power systems work. Of course, they've always played the security card. But I think one should be very cautious about such claims. Every government pleads security for almost anything it's doing, so since the plea is predictable it essentially carries no information. If after the event the power system claims security, that doesn't mean it's actually a functioning principle. And if you look at the record, you discover that security is generally a pre-text and security is not a high priority of governments. If By that I mean the security of the population -- security of the power system itself and the domestic interests it represents, yes, that's a concern. But security of the population is not. Shin Yanagisawa was part of the outstanding generation of japanese photographers from the 1960s and 1970s. Shin Yanagisawa was born 1936, in Tokyo. He was part of the outstanding generation of japanese photographers from the 1960s and 1970s. This generation shaped our ideas and impressions with a new photographic view of contemporary japan as a country between tradition and the modern era even until today. After studying at the famous Tokyo College of Photography in Shibuya, Yanagisawa started working as a freelance photographer. He became engaged in subjects of the landscape and their changes, the roughness of nature and the urban reality of big cities. With his camera he bore down upon life itself, showed backstage-eroticism in a night club; and traced with his camera a winter love, of which we only can assume, was unique to him.

Paul G. Fox, 48, of Franklin, Ohio, was sentenced in U.S. District Court today to 144 months in prison for possession of more than 600 images of child pornography depicting children under 12 years old in sadistic and masochistic conduct. Carter M. Stewart, United States Attorney for the Southern District of Ohio and Marlon Miller, Special Agent in Charge, Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), and members of the Greater Cincinnati Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force (ICAC) announced the sentence handed down today by Senior U.S. District Judge Sandra S. Beckwith.

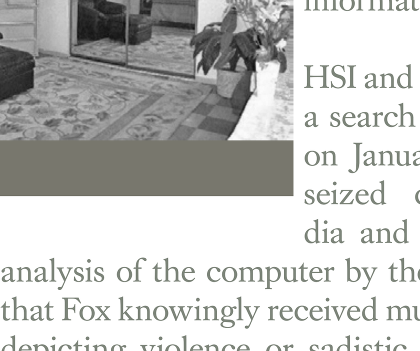

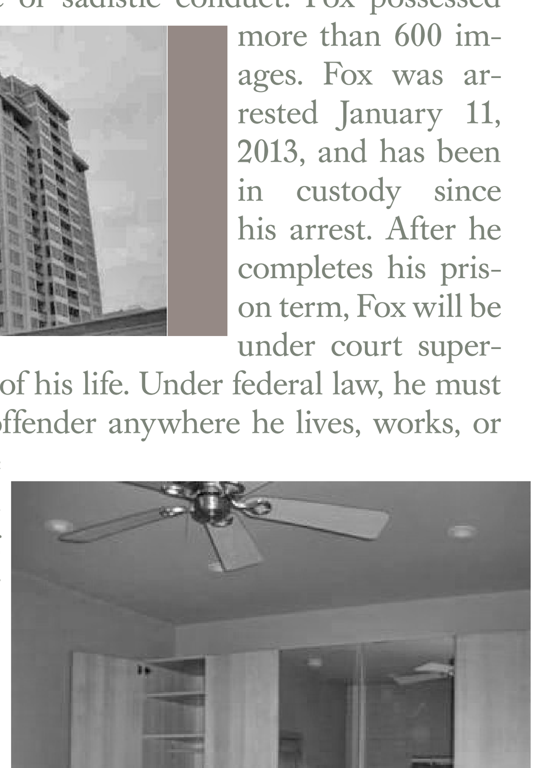

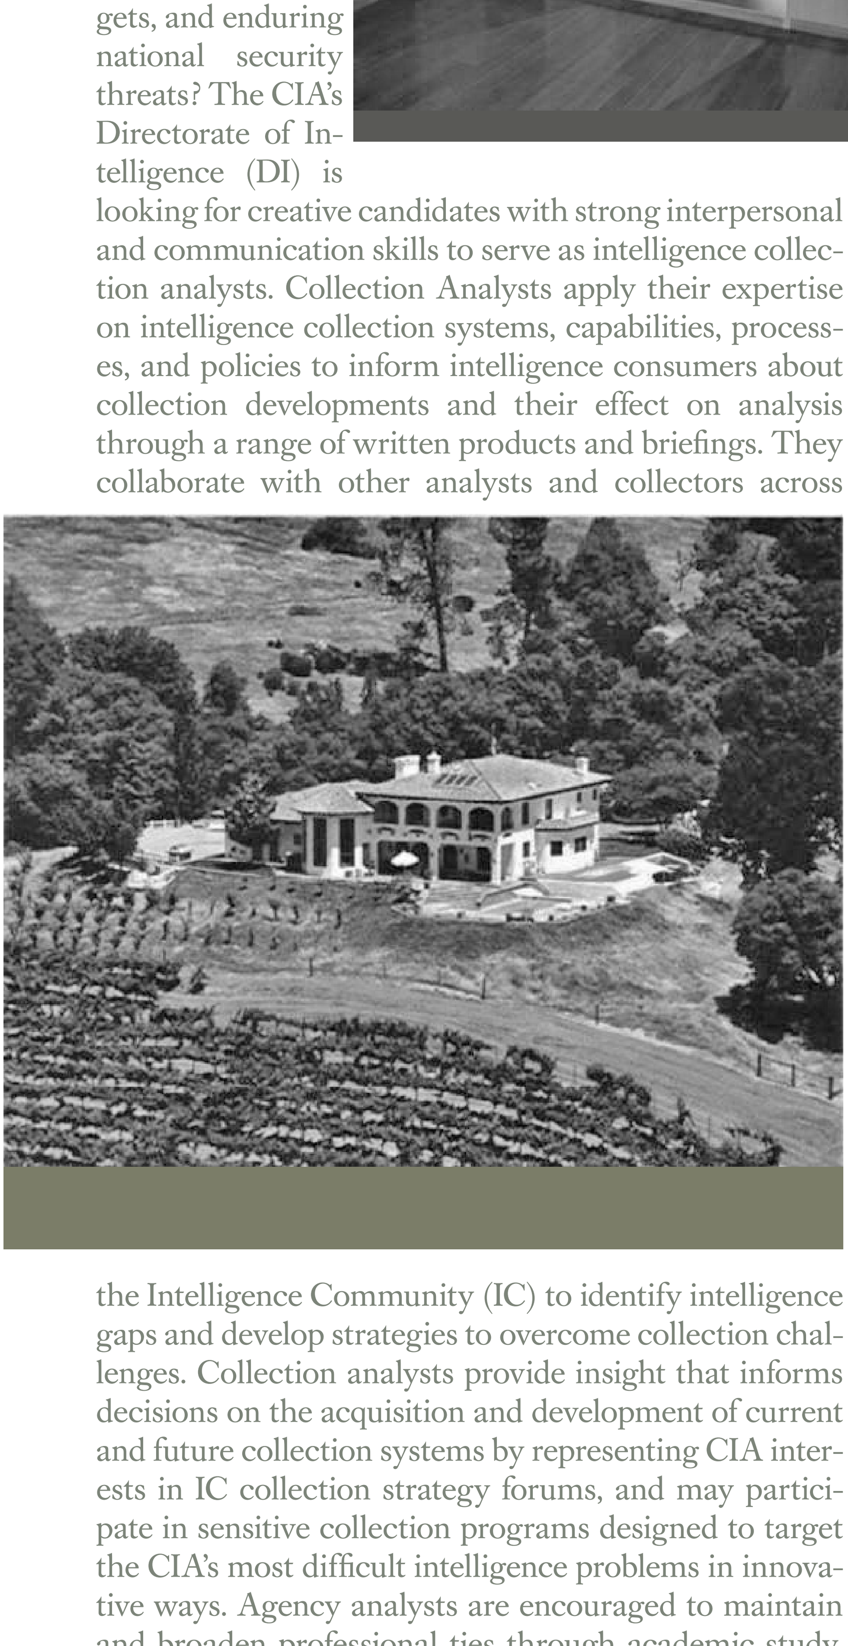

Fox pleaded guilty on April 24, 2013, to one count of receipt of child pornography. According to court documents, HSI received a child exploitation referral from the Queensland Police in Australia regarding images posted on a Russian image board indicating the exchange of images of child exploitation, with information pointing to Fox.

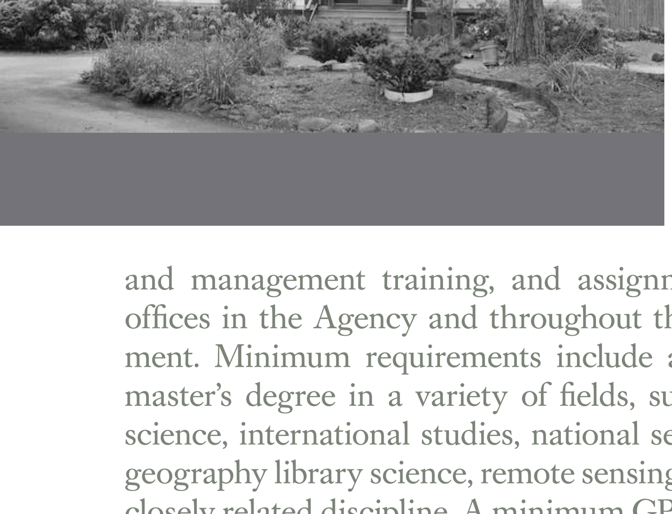

HSI and Franklin Police obtained a search warrant for Fox's house on January 9, 2013, where they seized computer storage media and a computer. A forensic analysis of the computer by the Secret Service showed that Fox knowingly received multiple images and videos depicting violence or sadistic conduct. Fox possessed more than 600 images. Fox was arrested January 11, 2013, and has been in custody since his arrest. After he completes his prison term, Fox will be under court supervision for the rest of his life. Under federal law, he must register as a sex offender anywhere he lives, works, or goes to school. Are you interested in understanding how the US government collects intelligence? Do you want to help ensure that the US intelligence system is providing policymakers and analysts with the information they need to understand emerging crises, hard targets, and enduring national security threats? The CIA's Directorate of Intelligence (DI) is looking for creative candidates with strong interpersonal and communication skills to serve as intelligence collection analysts. Collection Analysts apply their expertise on intelligence collection systems, capabilities, processes, and policies to inform intelligence consumers about collection developments and their effect on analysis through a range of written products and briefings. They collaborate with other analysts and collectors across the Intelligence Community (IC) to identify intelligence gaps and develop strategies to overcome collection challenges. Collection analysts provide insight that informs decisions on the acquisition and development of current and future collection systems by representing CIA interests in IC collection strategy forums, and may participate in sensitive collection programs designed to target the CIA's most difficult intelligence problems in innovative ways. Agency analysts are encouraged to maintain and broaden professional ties through academic study, contacts, and attendance at professional meetings. They may also choose to pursue additional studies in fields relevant to their areas of responsibility. Training is provided for specialized tools and skill needs. Opportunities exist for foreign travel, language training, analytic and management training, and assignments in other offices in the Agency and throughout the US Government. Minimum requirements include a bachelor's or master's degree in a variety of fields, such as political science, international studies, national security, history, geography library science, remote sensing, statistics, or a closely related discipline. A minimum GPA of 3.0 on a 4-point scale is required. Competitive candidates typically will have higher GPAs, relevant experience, and strong verbal presentation and writing skills, including the demonstrated ability to write clear and concise text. Excellent analytical and problem-solving skills, well-developed interpersonal skills, excellent briefing skills, and an ability to convey complex information in a clear, concise manner are also required. Analysts are expected to be comfortable using computers, because significant portions of their work employ complex databases. Intelligence collection experience is preferred--but not required--and military experience is valued. Foreign language capability is desired.

All applicants must successfully complete a thorough medical and psychological exam, a polygraph interview, and an extensive background investigation. US citizenship is required. To be considered suitable for Agency employment, applicants must generally not have used illegal drugs within the last twelve months. The issue of illegal drug use prior to twelve months ago is carefully evaluated during the medical and security processing.

Important Notice: Friends, family, individuals, or organizations may be interested to learn that you are an applicant for or an employee of the CIA. Their interest, however, may not be benign or in your best interest. You cannot control whom they would tell. We therefore ask you to exercise discretion and good judgment in disclosing your interest in a position with the Agency. You will receive further guidance on this topic as you proceed through your CIA employment processing. Americans live in a country lorded over by corporate and banking power. Our big business culture is accompanied by a pervasive and extraordinarily expensive military dominating the globe, ensuring our economic hegemony and protecting our interests. Meanwhile, there is a steady push to privatize as much of the public sector for private profit as achievable, especially in the education sphere.

David Arthur Rohm, 65, of Jackson, Tennessee, was sentenced yesterday to 87 months in federal prison following his guilty plea to one count of receipt of child pornography, announced U.S. Attorney Edward L. Stanton, III.

According to facts alleged in the indictment and revealed during the sentencing hearing, Rohm knowingly received DVDs that contained visual depictions of minor boys engaged in sexually explicit conduct.

In addition to the prison sentence, United States District Judge S. Thomas Anderson ordered Rohm to serve 10 years of supervised release and to forfeit all computers and media containing alleged child pornography. There is no parole in the federal prison system. Over the coming weeks we will delve into the different aspects of working with the soil to produce the crops we put in your shares each week. As farmers we respond daily to the weather conditions of temperature and moisture- it guides the decision we make on how and when we work the soil, when we seed and transplant and then nurture by adding nutrients, weeding, trellising etc. The myriad crops we grow require constant monitoring and nurturing to the day of harvest with lots of setbacks from pests, weeds and weather conditions. Our work is unpredictable and constantly dynamic and while there are always challenges, the rewards of a successful harvest bring us great pride. Most importantly, the act of sharing our harvest with an engaged, supportive community is a huge privilege.

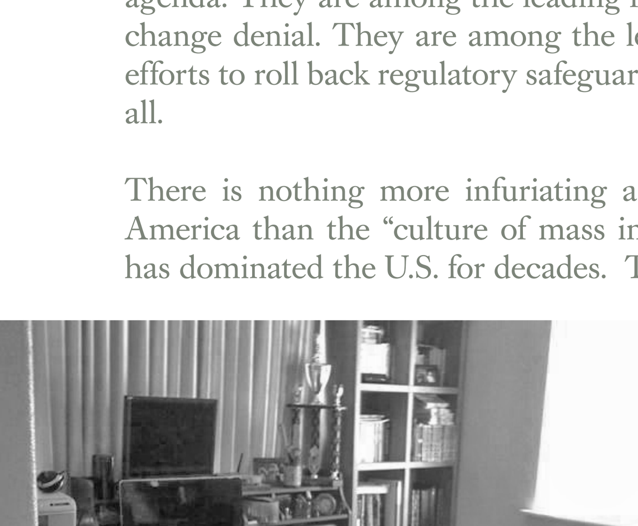

The Koch Brothers are the 6th and 7th wealthiest people IN THE WORLD, with a combined net worth of $72 billion. Emboldened by the Citizens United disgrace, they are spending hundreds of millions of dollars which

There is nothing more infuriating and depressing in America than the "culture of mass incarceration" that has dominated the U.S. for decades. The result is a virtual gulag of people under the control of the fundamentally racist criminal justice system. Even though white people outnumber black people five to one in the U.S., and both groups use and sell drugs at similar rates, the latter make up 55 percent of those convicted for drug possession and 74 percent of those imprisoned for drug possession.

As most people who have passing familiarity with student debt in the U.S. know, it's a millstone that is brutally difficult to remove. But it turns out that even the limited ways out are often not available in practice thanks to the hyper-aggressive conduct of a critical government contractor.

Unlike every other type of obligation save child support and criminal penalties, it can't be discharged in bankruptcy. The lone type of exception is "undue hardship": when a borrower is so clearly incapable of ever paying that it's ridiculous to keep pressing them for the money. The undue hardship standard is very difficult to meet, so one would think given how stringent it is, and therefore the comparatively small number of cases that are involved, that the student debt collectors would accept this minuscule level of losses and focus their resources on people with means. Sharjah is the only Emirate in which alcohol is banned. It also maintains the strictest decency laws in the UAE, introduced in 2001, with a conservative dress code required for both men and women. Mixing between unmarried men and women is illegal: "A man and a woman who are not in a legally acceptable relationship should not, according to the booklet, be alone in public places, or in suspicious times or circumstances."

Sharjah under the oil-based economy of the United Arab Emirates and other Gulf state has become very devoted in establishing a keen art scene in the region. It was known to be the first in the Emirates to develop in 1987 but reached a saturation point when it incurred almost billion dollars in debt. Having survived the meltdown, Sharjah is now known as UNESCOs Cultural Capital of the Arab World heralded in 1998. Here again we find another example of that vital though oft-overlooked principle: often, those labelled "criminals" by an unjust society are in fact its most noble actors. Slice kale, including ribs, into 3/4-inch-wide ribbons. You should have 4 to 5 cups. Or cut chop into small pieces. Place kale in a large bowl. If using bread, toast it until golden on both sides. Tear it into small pieces and grind in a food processor until mixture formscoarse crumbs. Using a mortar and pestle, or with the back of a knife, pound garlic into a paste. Transfer garlic to a small bowl. Add 1/4 cup cheese, 3 tablespoons oil, lemon juice, salt, pepper flakes (optional) and black pepper, and whisk to combine. Pour dressing over kale and toss very well to thoroughly combine (dressing will be thick and need lots of tossing to coat leaves). Let salad sit for at least 10 minutes or up to several hours- more time enables lemon juice to break down the kale and make more tender. Serve topped with bread crumbs, additional cheese and a drizzle of oil. The young people known as "Dreamers" are a powerful force among those pushing for immigration reform. They can better be described as fearless and determined. Enter an activist with just the right luck and timing to disrupt an Obama speech in San Francisco this November. Ju Hong, an immigrant rights activist from South Korea and member of Asian Students Promoting Immigrant Rights Through Education, interrupted President Obama to call for an end to mass deportations, engaging in a back-and-forth dialogue with him, not giving in inch. "I thought about my family, I thought about my personal struggle as undocumented, and I thought about my friends and my communities who have been deported and who are currently in detention centers," Hong said. "I felt I was compelled to tell the truth to President Obama that he has the ability to stop the deportations for all." In 1972 two young black men were convicted of the murder of a prison guard at Louisiana's infamous Angola prison. Albert Woodfox and Herman Wallace were sentenced to life imprisonment even though no physical evidence linked either man to the crime, potentially exculpatory evidence was "lost" by the state, and the authorities bribed the key eyewitness. Both men were kept in solitary for many years and Woodfox is currently serving his 40th year isolated in a 9 by 6 foot cell.

Woodfox and Wallace were placed in solitary confinement shortly after the murder, as was a third man named Robert King. Together Woodfox, Wallace and King make up the "Angola 3." The men spent 23 hours a day isolated in a small cell, four steps long and three steps across. King was released in 2001. Wallace was released in October 2013 when his conviction was overturned and died of liver cancer just three days later. Albert's conviction has been overturned 3 times, yet the Louisiana authorities have appealed every ruling in his favor. The men maintain that they were put in solitary confinement in retaliation for their work organizing their fellow prisoners against segregation and abuses in the prison. The first gold coin ever made for the United States — a "Double Eagle" Doubloon" struck in 1787 by a neighbor of George Washington — fetched $4,582,500, Heritage Auctions said. The coins were sold as part of a sale that has generated more than $55 million so far, Heritage Auctions said. "The legendary Brasher Doubloon is one of the most important coins in American history because it's the first gold coin struck for the young United States and it's one of only a handful that exist," said Todd Imhof, executive vice president of Heritage Auctions. The doubloon has been off the market since it was bought by a Chicago resident in 1979 for $430,000. League of Denial is a deep and meticulously investigated read, both fantastic and depressing, which exposes how the NFL denied and then consistently covered up overwhelming evidence that the basic everyday violence of football, especially in the brutal trenches of the NFL, causes irreparable brain damage. The Fainaru brothers probe the increasing public health crisis, a huge problem, not only in the $10 billion NFL industry but in colleges, high school, and even in midget football where children are increasingly at risk. It is hard to come to grips with the fact that the most popular sport in history causes untold harm, and probably should be rethought and eventually eliminated. Armin M was also a computer technician and until recently had a job with a software firm in the Rhine Valley city of Karlsruhe, 30 kilometers south of Rotenburg. He lived with his mother in the 17th-century half-timbered manor house, staying on there after her death. "He was a mama's boy," a neighbor later told reporters. "He was totally fixated on his mother, who he said never let him date girls. After she died, he began to thaw out." After some initial pleasantries the couple got down to business. Armin cut off Bernd's penis, sauteed it and the two ate it. The proceedings were videotaped by Armin. Police who later watched the tape are, according to the press, now undergoing psychiatric counseling. "The victim appeared to be fully aware of the situation," one investigator has told the press. "Video evidence material definitely shows both him and the suspect engaged in eating his own flesh prior to his death." The video also shows that the victim willingly allowed himself to be castrated before both men engaged in eating his severed flesh.

Then Armin M removed body parts for later enjoyment and buried the rest. Police found frozen human flesh and skeletal remains, and a cellar that had been renovated into a makeshift slaughterhouse, complete with trough drains and meat hooks. The knock on effect of an unquestioning culture of compliance with the 'free market' is enormous. Ever since it was first argued that the term 'free markets' is attributed with so much value and (a presumed) logic when in actuality it constrains people's freedoms and makes those who are already rich even richer. Because the politicians are not elected by the mass of the populace, and because it also serves their interests, they have handed over their social responsibilities to these market systems. The neoliberal dekults that caused the financial crisis are untouched by our democratic processes. These out of reach, distant power systems are fixed towards property bias and occupy and govern our everyday experiences. How does freedom of expression fit into this and on whose terms?

Good Day, I am Dr. Bright Ogu, of the newly inaugurated Committee in Central Bank Nigeria . Graphic Masterpieces from a Private Collection on January 28, 2014. Featuring 35 important examples the sale encompasses a survey of his graphic work, containing imagery which sheds light on the tumultuous times in which he Goya lived. One of the highlights of the sale is an early example of Los Caprichos, a complete set of eighty etchings first published in 1799. These prints exposed the corruption that earned Goya's homeland the appellation Black Spain. Here, Goya mocks the peasantry's superstitious belief in witchcraft, the arrogance of the nobility, and the widespread corruption of the Catholic Church. It offers a kaleidoscope view of evil, encompassing prostitutes, imagined witches and goblins. In order to protect himself from the wrath of the Inquisition, Goya masked his satire by means of images that could inspire. Good Day I must first tender an apology for this unsolicited mail to you. I am conscious that this is certainly not a proper manner of approach to foster a relationship of trust but because of the circumstances and urgency surrounding this venture I decided to reach you via this medium to join me put claims on this fund before it is seized or confiscated by the authorities. I got your contact information through the public records while searching for a similar name to our late client, a Business Magnate that lived in Spain for Nineteen years but died with his family during the TSUNAMI in INDONESIA and BALI that occurred in December 2004. Do not be amazed by this letter, I am contacting you based on Trust and confidentiality attached to this transaction. Before the catastrophe, the sum of $18.4M (EIGHTEEN MILLION, FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND US DOLLARS) was deposited in our bank and as the Auditor General of the Bank, the Board of Directors mandated me to present a member of the family (heir/inheritor) to make claims or the funds will be confiscated and taken to the Bureau as unclaimed. I was given an ultimatum to look for a relative to come for the claim or have the funds liquidated by the Spanish Government and made unserviceable in accordance with existing Spanish law in [ARTICULE 104B].

After preliminary efforts of search for a direct family member which came to no avail, I decided to contact you. My suggestion is that I will like to present you as the beneficiary to this fund, I know you may not be anyway related to my late client but there is a possibility that the fund will be released to you. I guarantee that if you are willing and interested, I will put all in place in accordance with the Law to legally present you as the Next of Kin and true beneficiary. This transaction is 100% risk free as I have worked all out to complete the operation effectively. Once this fund is released to you, it will be shared in the ratio of 40% for you, and 60% for me as our benefit which is ($7.4 Million for you) and ($11.04 Million for me). Kindly indicate your interest by mail to: smith196k @gmail.com for more information. Please endeavour to get back to me whether you are willing to collaborate with me or not so that I can further my search for another partner. I wait for your prompt response. Kindest Regards, Mike Smith. Michael C. Ormsby, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Washington, announced that Sky Steven Bennett, age 34, of Richland, Washington, was sentenced on January 13, 2014, after having previously pleaded guilty on October 22, 2013 to receipt of child pornography. United States District Court Judge Wm. Fremming Nielsen sentenced Bennett to a five-year term of imprisonment, to be followed by a 20-year term of court supervision after he is released from federal prison. In addition, Bennett was ordered to forfeit to the United States the computer equipment and digital media used to receive and store his child pornography collection.

According to information disclosed during the court proceedings, in August of 2012, the Columbia Energy and Environmental Services (CEES) Human Resource Department conducted an internal investigation of Bennett related to child pornography. The CEES referred their investigation to the Richland Police Department. The Richland Police Department, in partnership with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, conducted further investigation of Bennett and, on August 22, 2012, a search warrant was executed at Bennett's residence. Law enforcement discovered an extensive collection of child pornography at Bennett's residence. A forensic examiner determined that Bennett began receiving child pornography in 2000 and continued to do so until his residence was searched in August of 2012. Michael C. Ormsby stated, "I commend the collaborative work of the Richland Police Department and Federal Bureau of Investigation in this case. The United States Attorney's Office in the Eastern District of Washington is, and will continue to be, committed to prosecuting aggressively and seeking appropriate punishment for child pornography crimes. Prosecuting offenders who are collecting child pornography is a priority of the United States Attorney's Office." After several years of discussion, we have decided to add a market-style CSA option at the farm stand (traditional drop site options are still available). Every Wednesday, an assortment of fruits and vegetables is set up, and members pack their own share, choosing between a set number of items. A greater diversity of produce will be available than what is typically found in a traditional CSA share, with members being able to take what they love, and leave what they don't. Staples, like kale, and abundant seasonal items, like tomatoes, will almost always be available as choices when in season. A market-style

CSA provides much greater flexibility and is designed for those members who want more choice in what goes into their share each week. Retail giant faces trial over its campaign to snuff out worker strikes. We can wrest back control of our economy, and finally our political system, from corporate speculators only by building local movements that decentralize economic power through the creation of hundreds of publicly owned state, county and city banks.

Money, as Karl Marx lamented, plays the largest part in determining the course of history. Once speculators are able to concentrate wealth into their hands they have, throughout history, emasculated government, turned the press into lap dogs and courtiers, corrupted the courts and hollowed out public institutions, including universities, to justify their looting and greed. Today's speculators have created grotesque financial mechanisms, from usurious interest rates on loans to legalized accounting fraud, to plunge the masses into crippling forms of debt peonage. They steal staggering sums of public funds, such as the $85 billion of mortgage-backed securities and bonds, many of them toxic, that they unload each month on the Federal Reserve in return for cash. And when the public attempts to finance public-works projects they extract billions of dollars through wildly inflated interest rates.

Speculators at megabanks or investment firms such as Goldman Sachs are not, in a strict sense, capitalists. They do not make money from the means of production. Rather, they ignore or rewrite the law -- ostensibly put in place to protect the vulnerable from the powerful -- to steal from everyone, including their shareholders. They are parasites. They feed off the carcass of industrial capitalism. They produce nothing. They make nothing. They just manipulate money. Speculation in the 17th century was a crime. Speculators were hanged. The question of engagement is not singular to the art world, as activists and peers continue to grapple with it in the wake of the post-Occupy challenges. Just as activits have re-claimed and organized squares, parks and streets for a life-changing experience, so cultural workers have occupied cultural spaces, have disrupted the business cycles of galleries and auction houses, and have organized alternative schools and conscious-raising workshops. Nonetheless, we all share the frustration that all this is ephemeral, temporary, that as we participate in something magical together, it inevitably comes to an end.

While we have been successful at transforming small spaces for short periods of time, there is still much work to do in the way of a long-lasting and depth-reaching transformation of culture and society.

Happy New Year! OK, Lets talk about P-15 Furling foresails...... several questions: 1. Do I go with a furling "lapper" or a furling "genoa"? 2. Can the furling lapper use the same sheet cleats as the basic jib, or does it require the genoa tracks and blocks? 3. Do the the furling genoa/lapper sails perform "any where as" efficiently as the standard jib and standard lapper when these furling sails are "furled down" to the same size as the standard lapper and standard basic jib? Near Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, after pop stars soften up a crowd so tightly-packed that cops wave away late-comers well before midnight, the city offers a fiery midnight display, claimed as "the biggest in Europe". Unusual for many American visitors is the amazing amount of family fireworks in almost every city street. For 30 or 40 minutes countless thousands of rockets whiz skywards (almost always!) and burst up there loud enough to panic any dog, cat or pigeon in the neighborhood - and any innocent pedestrian daring to walk past the celebrants. Many save for months to buy those loud, brightly flying explosives, the churches call annually for a more charitable use of the money, but only the worst recession years saw any let-up. "Aren't they dangerous?" inquired a transatlantic visitor. "Sure!" was the retort. "Every year some get burned, lose a finger, even an eye. But nowhere so dangerous as all your pistols and assault rifles!" How are you doing there? Therefore, we want to ask what process-based, long term paths can be followed to bypass the traditional curated exhibition / festival or gallery representation to allow for more challenging explorations? How do we navigate artistic practice within the rigid established structures in order to allow for positive change and growth? Today?s art world is far from being friendly to cultural workers. Using our own methods, many have identified successful tactics for navigating the existing system ? although this system is becoming more and more unable to provide real support for creative production. How can art workers attain fair compensation without continuing to feed this broken system? How can they exercise their voices and power to develop other sustainable platforms and support the creative field? What experimental approaches to art education have been developed and are currently practiced? What new ways of unionizing precarious labor exist and could they be adapted to cultural workers?

Statistically, there is always a percentage of the forum posters who are more inclined to violence. In order to determine who these individuals are, it is a requirement to present a image to the forum to deliberately incite a strong psychological reaction. From this the most violent in the group can be effectively singled out for reverse IP location and possibly local enforcement tracking. To accomplish this only requires posting a link to a video depicting a local police officer massively abusing his power against a very innocent individual. Statistically of the million or so police officers in America there is always one or two being caught abusing there powers and the taping of the activity can be then used for intelligence gathering purposes - without the requirement to 'stage' a fake abuse video. This method is extremely effective, and the more so the more abusive the video can be made to look. Sometimes it is useful to 'lead' the forum by replying to your own posting with your own statement of violent intent, and that you 'do not care what the authorities think!!' inflammation. By doing this and showing no fear it may be more effective in getting the more silent and self-disciplined violent intent members of the forum to slip and post their real intentions. This can be used later in a court of law during prosecution.
